Do I need a Permit

If you plan on raising quail whether it be for a hobby or commercial use. You will need a permit because quail are considered game birds or wildlife.

Due to the fact that all wildlife is regulated or has regulations. You will have to contact your State's Department of Wildlife and Natural Resources, to get the permit information.

You can find this information by using your favorite search engine, and typing in your State name and then Department of Wildlife and Natural resources.

If you live in the city, you will have to also call your city planning and zoning department. Make sure you do this before you purchase a permit from the State. The State may issue you the permit and the city could say no. Then you would have wasted your money.

Most States have 2 different types of permits.

1. Raising quail for commercial use.
2. Raising quail for release or hobby.

Prices usually range some where between $20 and $30 per year. Some States could be higher or lower it all depends what State you live in.

On the next page I have created links for most States. Follow the link for your state and it will take you to a web site in which you will be able to find information on obtaining a permit. It may be easier to just get the contact information from the site and contact them. They will be able to help you.

I am not sure how different states handle this. I don't know if they will want to know what breed of quail you are going to raise or not. So finish reading the book and determine the species of quail you want to raise.
